

Functional Methods with Jeffrey Burch

Precise Assessment and Low Force Treatment

4 days 3 times, March, Oct.2024, 2025

The growing interest for Jeff's approach and the recent publication of his book "Assessment and Treatment Methods for Manual Therapist" let us open up a second series.

There are many varieties of Functional Assessment and Treatment Methods. The most practiced are Unwinding and Functional-Indirect. Skill in a full scope of functional methods will, however, dramatically increase the number of keys on a practitioner's ring to unlock wellbeing in a wide range of client scenarios.

The workshops will equip participants with an integrated and widely applicable assessment protocol, and a diverse treatment skill set with which to address a wide range of biomechanical issues.

Learn all these methods and how they relate to each other to get a much fuller understanding of how functional methods achieve change in the body. You will then be able to mix and match techniques to address a wide range of situations. Along with treatment strategies good assessment skills are essential.

For all bodyworkers with a professional education in touch-based bodywork/manual therapy.
